CRAWFISHING

Only a few weeks ago the Boston Advertiser was flinging its contempt at all Republicans who refused to applaud the surrender of Republican principles, and declaring that they were not worth a moment's thought by the State Convention. No epithets were too contemptuous for application to opponents of the "policy," but the Advertiser arrogantly demanded that the platform be made even more obnoxious to sincere Republicans than was that of the President's own State, declaring that the one great duty of Massachusetts was to outstrip all other localities in the obsequiousness of its indorsement of all the vagaries of the Administration. Nothing could be more intolerant than its refusal to recognize any difference of opinion, and its lofty scorn was freely visited upon the Republicans of Maine for having sought to avoid forcing a direct issue upon a point of known controversy. According to the Advertiser a Republican who refused to applaud the betrayal of the principles of his party, had no rights which the double-distilled, daughtiest reformers were bound to respect, and we were haughtily told that Massachusetts would utter a rebuke to the "stalwart Republicans" that would confound all opponents of the policy. Readers of the Advertiser will remember the lofty air with which it proclaimed that all the old-fashioned Republicans might take back seats, and that the "independent voter" and the rose-water reserve would dash to the front and achieve a tremendous victory. Well, the "stalwart Republicans" have been modest and quiet, giving the Pharisee crowd full swing in the canvass, but still the Advertiser don't seem to be happy. The Ohio election was rather depressing from a "policy" point of view, and for a week or two the Advertiser has seemed to be impressed with the idea that the votes of Republicans are of some importance after all. It is only when we consider its strutting and sneering and boasting immediately after the State Convention, that we can fully appreciate how precipitately it has crawled down from its high horse, to beg in the market-place the support of the very voters it has treated with contempt. In Tuesday's issue, under the heading "Two Weeks More," it utters the following plaintive and humble appeal:

> The election takes place two weeks from to-day. The important question to be decided is, shall Massachusetts continue to be a Republican State? For the time being, the tide runs counter! Shall we make one more honest and earnest effort to stem the current? The issues not between two sorts of Republicans! There is but one Republican party, and far distant may the day be when it must be divided! It is not between the advocates and opponents of various social reforms which are crowding into the canvass. They have thrown time for consideration, and Republicans are not in the habit of neglecting them. But the direct and plain issue is between the two great parties, held together by their national traditions, and bound to carry out to the extent of their power the national principles they have avowed.
> If there is anything in the Republican party worth saving, the effort should be made here and now. If there is any sincerity in the professions of distrust of the spirit and purpose of the National Democracy, this is the time and place for it to be manifested.
> Unfortunately, the opposition must to be found by Republicans comes from their own bosoms! The pretexts for dissension are many, but the most ludicrous and most difficult to meet is that which excuses letting the Democrats in on the assumption that the President has done wrong. Those who are offended with the President propose to punish the Republican party wherever there is an appearance of sympathy with his efforts, or of an alliance in his patriotism. But of what advantage to them will it be?

The above is enough to show how adroitly the Advertiser is crawfishing away from the dictatorial position it recently assumed. At this late hour it admits that the serious trouble is dissatisfaction of Republicans with the "policy" so extravagantly lauded in the State platform. Those dissatisfied Republicans agree with the Advertiser that there is a great issue between the Republican and Democratic parties which "are bound to carry out to the extent of their power the national principles they have avowed." But they also believe that the present Administration has been carrying out the principles of Democracy instead of Republicanism, and it is because the State convention has been proclaimed as having for its primary object the "indorsement" of that abandoning of principle, that they are unable to show the enthusiasm which the Advertiser now desires. It is the coolest of effrontery for that paper to now appeal to the general devotion to the Republican cause, after itself and its allies have based the campaign distinctly and almost exclusively upon the indorsement of a "policy" obnoxious and hateful to thousands of the best Republicans of the State. Its question "Of what advantage to them will it be?" to refuse to vote against their convictions of right and justice, would be a strange one in any but a Boston paper. Sincere men sometimes decline to sacrifice their principles even when they have no hope of personal "advantage" to sustain them. There was a time when Massachusetts was proud to claim that quality in her citizenship, and it is a pity that the self-appointed reformers who engineered the State Convention did not consider that there might still be some of the old leaven of sturdy principle among the Republicans of the Bay State.

One of the most important appointments made by the President during the recess was that of Judge King who was given the Collectorship of New Orleans in order that his withdrawal from the recognized Supreme Court of Louisiana should destroy the only tribunal to which the legal State Government could appeal for maintenance of its rights. Yet the name of Judge King has not yet been sent in for confirmation. Why the delay?

A Boston Advertiser special says that on Monday Senator Mitchell received the report drawn up by Senator Morton in the Kellogg case "and it will be laid before the committee immediately, and probably adopted by them. It takes the position that the Legislature electing Kellogg was legal, and his title therefore good, notwithstanding the fact that subsequent to the time when it elected him it ceased to be recognized as the legal legislature of the State."

If the Republican party had stuck to principle everywhere as it did in Maine and Iowa, it might have carried Ohio with a rush and been standing upon certain ground in Massachusetts. The reign of the Pharisees is about finished.—Boston Traveller.

THE POLICY IN WASHINGTON.

THE PARTY AND THE PRESIDENT—THE CRISIS AT HAND—THE REPUBLICANS IN CONGRESS STRONGLY OPPOSED TO THE POLICY.

(Editorial Correspondence Boston Traveller.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17. Not many months ago a Boston editor of self-esteemed respectability, thirsting for a new departure into the realms of the political millennium, and animated by a desire for revenge upon the "machine," mounted his high moral horse and came to Washington for the purpose of exploring the foundations of the new Administration. He saw the President and Stanley Matthews, and then sought the privacy of his own select quarters, communing with himself. "This Administration is as I would have ordained it," he said, and that was enough. The tailors of Tooley street were not more startling in their effect upon the world as "WE, the people," than was the demonstration that followed. Things being fixed to his satisfaction, this editorial Don Quixote wrote to his paper the crushing decree that "the Maine style of politics" was no longer wanted, meaning, thereby, not the politics of one State only, but the unyielding radical Republicanism of all the States; but using as an example that State which had treated his subscription list the most roughly. Had he then known the full force of his remark, and had the Republican party believed it, the political conditions would now be quite different from what they are, and the Republican party long since would have shaken off its shackles and been on the high road to victory instead of defeat. The Maine-Iowa style of politics has indeed been expurgated from this Administration, and in its place the Mississippi-Georgia-South Carolina style has been inserted in all its vigilance to fan the Republicans who come to Washington hoping to see a Republican Administration.

I propose to write the plain, unvarnished truth about the political situation so far as it can be observed here. It is not encouraging to the Republican party. It is not encouraging to the Administration, unless that rather shadowy power has made up its mind fully to sail with the ex-Confederates. It is encouraging to the Democratic party. This is the superficial view of it. Rather, I should say, it is the view of the immediate probabilities. The usefulness and power of the Republican party for present work have been so effectually paralyzed by the administration as though its leaders had been swallowed in an earthquake. The feeling is that the body is still alive and healthy, but the head and the mind staggers. To all intelligent minds, the result in Ohio is the legitimate outgrowth of this condition, and, it may as well be said, in no many words, nothing better is expected from the elections to follow, except perhaps that Conkling may carry the New York Legislature and the Republicans of New Jersey will make handsome gains.

The Republican side of Congress is in a maze. The completeness and enormity of the surrender which has been made by the administration during the vacation, is astonishing even to the wisest members of Congress, and many policy men who came here hoping for peace under Republican rule as the fruit of the policy, are aghast at the spectacle; while those who came here hostile are struck dumb by sheer pity for the authors of this political ruin. The surface appearance is intensely Southern. It is improvise beyond the possibility of a doubt. It strikes the observer at every turn. I never knew such a condition in Washington before since slavery died. Not even in the flight of Andy Johnson's departure was there such a feeling of coldness toward and distrust of the President, in the party which elected him. Men who were friendly to the President before, have found the condition of the shrewder so hopeless, that the extent of their policy is bounded by wild protestations that "we can do nothing about it now."

It is useless longer for the policy-holders to deny that a very large majority of the Republicans in both Houses of Congress are strongly opposed to the President, and are prevented from breaking out in open warfare by the natural abhorrence of a party smash-up. Besides, we may as well acknowledge the truth, the President has seriously tied the hands of his old Republican friends. This is especially the case with the Southern Republicans who did so much to elect him. One of them said to-day, "What can you expect us to do? What can you expect us to do? The President turns coldly away from us. We never call upon him; but we stumble over Hampton, Gordon, Lamar and that sort of men. He declares openly to us, that the patronage of the United States belongs to the Democrats. Under the circumstances, what can you expect us to do? With the Republican party bulldozed to death behind us, and growled at in front by the Democrats and the administration, why shouldn't we make the best terms we can?" This is the practical argument of men who feel the terrible persecutions inflicted for the purpose of driving them away from home and out of political and public existence. Nevertheless, these men who have been totally abandoned by the President will stand fast to the Republican party upon one condition—a reasonably certain condition—namely, that the Republicans in Congress will stand by them and discountenance the policy. The attitude has an impressive influence among the Republicans even of darker hues. There seems to be an awakening to the fact that these men are the forlorn hope of a sentiment which will one day demand recognition at the hands of the national party of freedom as it has occasionally before, and that it will not do to stand by and let it be crushed before the eyes of its friends. This enforced union is the last lingering hope of Republicans who have ceased to expect any political good to come directly from the administration.

There is a growing opinion that the break must come before long between the party and the President. A prominent member of Congress said to me to-day that the break would have come, before this if the party had been as strong as it was in Johnson's time. Many, I think truthfully, the majority, of both Houses, are ready for the break, but they are not anxious to precipitate it because of the many Republicans who must be placed in open antagonism to the President when their official relations would continue much pleasanter under the present conditions. This is no secret. The feeling against him permeates everywhere, grows intenser every hour, and is wider than it was against Andrew Johnson before the party threw him off. Now there are who expect to turn the President back toward the friends who elevated him to power. When asked how they can expect that, since it is well known that the President's most frequent and most welcome counsellors are ex-rebel generals, they say, "the rebels declare that they've got all they expect of him, and will throw him off now; he will be forced back upon us." This is a humiliating thought, but it was the expression of a New England Congressman to-day, one who has been quoted as Hayesey, and really has been tainted. With this slender hope of reconciliation, however, came from him the opinion that if Congress continues in session three weeks, the break will be forced before the President has time to repent and retreat.

Yes: it is true. The Maine-Iowa style of politics is not wanted by the ruling powers in Washington. The Confederacy is rising to the top, and it will stay there until the Maine-Iowa style of politics submerges the Republican party once more. After the tidal wave comes the wrecker. After the treason comes the reckoning. Then there will be a change of management and a revival.

Last Friday the Democratic Senators expressed great fear that the Committee would delay Spofford's case. On Monday the Committee summoned Spofford and Kellogg, when the former begged a postponement, to obtain counsel and prepare his case. He had evidently counted on being voted in without question as a logical "fruit of the policy."

The Proprietor of the Commercial may possibly find satisfaction in parading figures to show how inadequately his property has been taxed in the past, but he is entirely mistaken in supposing that we shall make our own business affairs the subject of discussion with him. The proper officers have been afforded every facility in assessing the tax upon our property and it is open to their inspection and review at any time. We do not, however, regard the Commercial man as the proper person to adjust our taxes, or as entitled to information about our business.

It now appears that the Confederate Fitzsimmons (who is to oust Marshal Smyth, of Georgia) has the special recommendation of being Wade Hampton's nephew. Of course he should have the place.

for the benefit of the

Universalist Parish,

By Rev. C. C. BOLLES, of Maine,

Thursday Evening, October 25th

This lecture will afford our citizens a rare intellectual treat, as Mr. Bolles is universally acknowledged to be one of the most eloquent and acceptable orators on the platform.

Rev. Mr. Eaton says of him: "He is without exception the ablest lecturer on the Microscope in the country. He not only understands the use of that instrument, but has the happy faculty of explaining its wonders to an audience."

As the lecture is for the benefit of the Society, an admission fee of 25 cents will be charged at the door.

MAINE NEWS.

SENATOR BLAINE

Still Confined to his Bed

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23 Senator Blaine continued to his bed with a prospect of his severe illness being much shorter than yesterday. Few persons only were admitted to his chamber. A despatch from Augusta says the attending physician forbade his daughter Alice out of doors unless an overcoat should be worn. The bill with which she was threatened has not been executed.

Condition of Miss Alice Blaine

NEW YORK Oct. 23 This telegram to the Washington dispatch says Mr Blaine's health is slightly improved this morning though not enough to give any indication of when he will be able to start North or be able to see any visitor. Mr Blaine of Maine is in attendance this morning. The latest bulletin from his daughter Alice passed a quiet night free from inflammation should set him up in a day or two she will be in a fair state of health and recovery.

WASHINGTON Oct 23 Senator Blaine's condition continues to improve. A despatch was received this morning to Mr Blaine's residence at home.

MARINE DISASTER

GLOUCESTER Oct 23 Fishing schooner Mary E Prest of Bristol Me, while lying on the Half Way Rock about daylight this morning, struck a blocking, was run into by a coasting schooner and considerably damaged. The Medora asked to be towed into port but was refused. The vessel also refused to give her name. The Medora was bound hence for repairs.

FROM CALAIS

Supposed Horse Thief Arrested

CALAIS Oct 23 One Charles Boulier was arrested yesterday on suspicion in the town of Eastport, Me, by Sheriff Smith of Calais, being the party who stole Dr D H Stevens's horse and carriage in Bangor on the 11th. Boulier is held by Sheriff Smith for identification.

FROM BIDDEFORD

The York County Fair

BIDDEFORD Oct 23 The York County Agricultural Fair began to day. The attendance this morning was good, and the exhibition of horses was very fine. At Hill's is a large display of fruit, vegetables, fancy articles and poultry. The exhibition will continue till Thursday night. Two horses were offered to day for trotting, but no trotting was made. Lady Hall took the purse and Bayard Boy took the money.

FROM LEWISTON

Trial of the Lambs

LEWISTON Oct 23 The examination of Mr and Mrs James A Lamb and J Fred Foss charged with causing the death of Lizzie M Holmes, was opened in the Municipal Court to-day County Attorney White conducts the case for the Government. Hale is for and Savage for respondent. On reading the warrant all plead not guilty. The evidence thus far goes to show that given at the highest the case developed being the testimony of Esther Wormus, the Foss family occupied a tenement adjoining that of the Lambs. The night of the disappearance of the girl forcibly with a woman and go up there. A child of the government witness was examined.

THE INDIANS

The Commissioners' Interview with Sitting Bull

NEW YORK Oct 23 Further details of the commissioners' interview with Sitting Bull are as follows Terry is quoted as saying that the President desired their presence because it was thought if they came with friendly words the hostile enemies of the whole tribe. Terry was speaking the Indians kept up a continuous talk.

Sitting Bull's Speech

After Terry concluded, Sitting Bull said For sixty four years you have kept me and my people and treated me bad What do we do that you should want us We have done nothing. It is the people of your side that have started us to do all the depredations We could not go any where else so we took refuge in the country of the British It was on this side of the country that we learned to shoot and that is the reason why I came back to it. I would like to know why you came here in the first place? I did not give you any country, but you followed me from one place to another, so I had to come here to this country. I did not give you my country but you took it away from me (long dohance) I was born and lived in this country with the Red River half breeds and I hoped to stop with them. I was raised hand in hand with the Red River half breeds and we are going to that part of the country, (shaking hands with English officers) that is the way I was raised in the hands of these people here. That is why I listened to him with them and got ears to hear and eyes to see. If you see how I live with these people do you think I am a fool you are bigger fools than I am This house is a medicine house You come here to tell us lies, but I don't wish to hear them Don't you say two more words Go back home where you came from This country is mine, and I intend to stay here and raise this country full of grown people See these people here We were raised with them. Again shaking hands with the English officers That is enough say no more. I see no one shaking hands with these people. The part of the country you gave me you ran me out of. I have now come here and I intend to stay here I wish you to go back and take it away going back. (Meaning that the Commission should take such a long time that it would never get back.)

The Indians Chagrined at the Weakness of their Tactics

The Hon Howard of the Indians interpreting this address, showed perfect sympathy between them and Sitting Bull. Several other Sioux took opportunities to speak. Generals Terry and Lawrence exhibited little concern during the proceedings. The Indians, who seemed rather chagrined at the non-effect of their tactics on the Commission, arose to leave the room when an interpreter arrested them for a moment and was desired by General Terry to ask "Shall we say to the President that you refuse the offers he has made to you? Are we to understand from what you said that you refuse these offers?"

The Defiant Chief

A long pause followed The Indians present felt the occasion was important. They cast inquiring glances toward Col. Stickwood and Maj Walsh, who gave no response, sign and looked suspiciously toward the interpreters. They deliberated with some trepidation on the line so greatly concerning their future, weal or woe, and then Sitting Bull stood up and said I could tell you more, but that is all I have to tell you. If we told you more you would pay no attention. That is all I have to say This part of the country doesn't belong to your people. It belongs to us! During this decision harangue the "Howlers" of the assembled Indians became more confident and emphatic. The "Crow" then embraced Col. McLeod and Maj Walsh and made a speech saying he should stay in the British country.

The Indians Disconcerted—Further Result to the Commission.

Getting tired of the Indian by-play, Gen Terry again asked, "Do they refuse?" Sitting Bull answered, "I told you what I meant—that's enough" Terry smiling said, "that's all. Sitting Bull still aggressively said, "Go, you belong to the other side" Gen. Terry rising, and consulting with Col McLeod said "I think we can have nothing more to say to them, Colonel,"—Well, said McLeod, I suppose you are right. In that case said Terry to the interpreter, tell them there is nothing more." This decision disconcerted the Indians although they did not earn to manifest their chagrin. Uncle chief also has been to him into the Commission After declining in reasonable conversation and responding with an organized adroit to the Commission Sitting Bull completed the insult by shaking hands with the Commission officers at the end of the conference and addressing to them terms of affection and respect while he signified the Americans present by not even saying the Indian how or good bye. The whole interview was all absurd and amusing to the members of the Commission.

The Indians on the Hands of the English.

It is certable to the Dominion officers and effective only in this respect it proved the fealty of the United States government to be a honorable duty to a mighty foreign power which power is to be regarded for some time to come with the care of the hands of Indians, which did not have shown no other law, discipline or good faith—Sitting Bull returned to his camp accompanied by Major Walsh who's duty it is to act to the peace in the Northwest.

Return of the Commission

The Commission started on its return on the 20th It is not thought the Indians will cross the border at present but it is believed the young braves next Spring will make raids into Montana.

Joseph and his Band

A dispatch from Bismarck, Dakota, the 22 says Howard and staff arrived this morning He wished to keep Joseph and his band at Cen Miles post at the mouth of the Tongue river but previous orders had been sent to Miles to bring them to Fort Abraham Lincoln, opposite Bismarck. Howard says Josephs Indians killed right along and counted 60 citizens they had murdered on their retreat and 170 soldiers have been killed in battle since they started on the war path Gen Sturgis with the wounded officers Maylan and Godfrey, arrived at Fort Abraham Lincoln on the 3d The steamer Benton left there for Omaha last evening with 400 men of the 2d 4th 5th and 7th Infantry. Howard's son says Joseph offered his gun to Howard when he surrendered but Howard turned him over to Miles, telling the latter it was his fight. Allentor from Custer's battle grounds says about a dozen graves were found opened by wolves or Indians and the bones reinterred by Col Brackett of the 2d cavalry about the 1st of October

FIRE IN FREDERICTON, N. B.

THE WORK OF AN INCENDIARY.

BARELY SAVED FROM DESTRUCTION

The Loss Estimated at $30,000

The Incendiary Torch—The City Threatened with Destruction.

ST JOHN N B, Oct 23 Shortly before 12 o clock last night the incendiary torch was applied to a barn in the rear of the Lower Hotel on Queen street. In the upper part of which stood a hay and in a few minutes a fire was raging which at once threatened destruction to the greater part of the city. Hose was laid to an adjoining barn, the one in a large house occupied by Dr Curran, and from there the flames were carried from house to house with astonishing speed by the high wind which was blowing taking the dwelling house and adjoining owned and occupied by J Ward Seely and the dwelling-house and large store of Martin Mackey, all on Queen street, which were reduced to ashes in a short time. Here the fire struck the large wooden building occupied by John McPhee on the corner of Queen and Westmoreland streets, and in a moment it collapsed. In the meantime the fire had worked its way around to the head of the Queen street building, taking the barns, sheds and other outlying buildings of the properties, thus making communication with the buildings fronting on Westmoreland street and southward the latter were in flames including the spacious residence of Hugh Clark, a large house belonging to the Sargent estate and a double dwelling owned by Alderman Dykeman and the Estey estate

The Flames Stayed—Excitement among the People—Loss $30,000

Here by the extraordinary efforts of the firemen aided by large numbers of citizens the fire was stayed, and at 3 o clock the city was considered safe All through the night immense showers of sparks and firebrands were driven the entire length of the city which was saved only by the utmost vigilance and promptness in extinguishing them the moment they struck. There can be no doubt that the fire was the work of an incendiary as it was found in the steamer Alexandra was brought to the scene that she had been tampered with, the relief valve being tied in such manner that some time was required to get her working. The good water supply had much to do with saving the city. Fan Halley warehouse burnt out but they saved a large portion of their household effects. The loss cannot be placed below thirty thousand dollars, but the insurance is not yet known The greatest excitement prevailed during the fire, and hundreds of families in different parts of the city will likely be collection of St John and Portland fires, picked up and in many instances had terrified to be kept in order of the city.

GREAT BRITAIN

The Terrible Mine Explosion

LONDON, Oct 23 The work of exploring the collieries at Hill Cliffe proceeded throughout the night Four miners were discovered alive about eleven o clock, but so exhausted that they died before reaching land. The fire case is thought hopeless Mining experts express their opinion that all the men working in the pit are killed. Search parties have no reason to hope they can reach them in less than eight or ten days. The work of bringing up the dead was resumed this morning. The bodies are fearfully burned and mangled, showing the explosion was terrible.

MISS BLAINE'S CONDITION. The Kennebec Journal of Tuesday contained the following statement

The public solicitude in regard to the condition of Miss Blaine, and sympathy for the family, were shown Sunday and yesterday in the many anxious inquiries made at the house. We are happy to state that Miss Blaine's condition continued quite favorable yesterday. She was not quite so well in the afternoon, but it is hoped that her restlessness will be only temporary. Emmons Blaine and Miss Dodge came on the train last evening.

The Lewiston Journal has the following complimentary editorial reference to Mrs. Crossman's temperance addresses in Auburn

Mrs. Crossman of Bangor addressed crowded audiences Saturday evening at the Auburn Reform rooms and Sunday afternoon at Auburn Hall. Mrs. Crossman is a woman of positive opinions, to which she gives pungent and effective expression. Her tribute to the Auburn Club cannot fail to encourage the club and arouse the ladies as well as others to the importance of co-operation in this great work.

Marshal Low has at his office a lot of cards with the temperance pledge printed on the reverse side, and he has already induced between forty and fifty persons to sign them, and out of this number all but one have kept sober, at least the officers have not had occasion to arrest them.

BUSINESS BRIGHTENING. While all our exchanges are bringing assurance of a steady and substantial improvement in business, we are glad to note that the indications of a healthy revival are apparent in our own section We are assured by Messrs. Wheelwright, Clark & Co, one of the heaviest jobbing houses of our city, that business has not been so good in October for three years past as during the present month At this firm have a large trade throughout this section of the State, their testimony is valuable as showing a general improvement We learn that our merchants generally recognize a gratifying improvement in local trade compared with that of recent years at this season

ELEGANT PICTURES We have received from Messrs. D. Bugbee & Co, several elegant pictures of the new style of Bellotype Engravings published by F. B. Osgood & Co. Boston which are the reproductions of the most famous and attractive European works of art The beauty of the pictures produced by this process and the cheapness with which copies of the finest classical and modern works of eminent artists are furnished are rendering them very popular The pictures are permanent and handsome as engravings faithful to the original as a photograph, and by rival on the line of place up to 1 Dollars in size are sold for the low price of one dollar each Messrs Bugbee & Co have been made the special agents for this city in Bangor and their extensive catalogue embracing between two and three hundred pictures from the most famous old and modern artists will be found very attractive The list includes the choice works of Bouguereau Claude Lorraine, Correggio Delaroch Domenichino Durer, Gainsborough, Holbein, Hunt Jugas Landseer Meissonier Michael Angelo Millais Raphael Murillo, Rembrandt Reynolds Rosa, Rubens, Schalcken, Titian, Van Dyck Vandyck Paul Veronese Vernet and many others The Bellotype process places copies of the works of the great Masters which would ordinarily be very expensive within their reach at very moderate prices and the pictures are same to commend every lady and gentleman.

LOTTERY. Last evening a large and very fine audience assembled in the Association Rooms, to witness the display of Ancient and decorated pottery and to listen to President Hamlin's lecture. The exhibition not only embraced some very ancient specimens, but some very handsome and valuable specimens and was an lovely one of the finest exhibitions that has ever taken place in this State. We have not the space to give a full report but will say a few of the specimens Mrs Babb exhibited a pitcher that came over in the Mayflower Mr Thomas Smith a Chinese cup and saucer 1000 years old Japanese idol by Dr Harris Mr Mr Knapp a piece of pottery eighteen hundred years old, P H Vose exhibited specimens of Ornington, and Portland ware and some very handsome and valuable specimens of Majolica images Pincelotti, Mr C W Morrill a pair of vases two thousand years old Dr Hamlin a large and very fine Japanese cup Mrs H B Williams, Miss Hamlin Miss Colick, M H Andrews and E K Smith, exhibited specimens of pottery decorated with embossed figures Mrs J Sullivan Mrs Stevens and Miss Moore specimens decorated by the brush J S Ricker exhibited a large collection of Portland ware It was estimated that there were over three hundred specimens of pottery on exhibition At eight o clock the meeting was called to order and President Hamlin delivered a lecture on Pottery that was not only very instructive but very interesting. His address occupied about an hour and held the close attention of his hearers until the last word was pronounced At a meeting of the Board of Management, twenty-six names were proposed for membership and were accepted

DRAMATIC ENTERTAINMENT The members of the Unity Club gave a dramatic entertainment at Unity Hall last evening, when they produced two interesting farces, entitled "Nature and Philosophy" and "Little Toodlekins" The first was cast as follows Ronaldo, W. J. Curtis, Philip, D F Kelleher, Colin, Frank Crowell, Flora Miss Mae Morrow, Gertrude, Miss —— Brett The plot was based on the fact of introduction into a home of a young man who was the child of the forest and had never seen a woman The characters were well taken, and the many amusing situations created in the merriment The concluding farce was by far the better of the two The cast was as follows Jones Robinson, Brownsmith, F A Owen, Barney Bubbycombe D F Kelleher, Captain Fellipoy, F E Small, Amanda, Miss Katy Palmer, Anna Bobtheorbe, Miss Hattie Crowell, Susan, Miss Daisy Crowell. This play kept the audience in a constant uproar of laughter—The gentlemen acquitted themselves finely as did also the ladies The new scenery made by Mrs. Charles Grant is very pretty and is very finely arranged The whole scenery can be taken down and put up in a very short space of time It is very neat in its design and the workmanship is very superior. The Amateur Orchestra played several fine selections, which were well received The entertainment was about two hours in length, and was highly appreciated by the very large audience present. "Little Toodlekins" will be repeated next Thursday evening, and after the presentation the hall will be cleared and a dance will take place Music will be furnished by Mr Andrews

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE For CATARRH,

IS UNIVERSALLY RECOMMENDED.

We have just received a communication from nearly every druggist in New England and the Western and the testimony is universally in favor of Sanford's Radical Cure For Catarrh. We believe this to be the most well known and popular remedy so popular was one more deserving of praise. Founded upon correct scientific principles and calculated by the combined physicians to meet the severest forms of Catarrh, the cures made by it have not only been numerous but so remarkable as to excite public attention and cause the sale to exceed all that of any other remedy ever before compounded.

While many are anxious to make public their testimony in favor of the Radical Cure, a large number may be found (family or medical reasons) that do not feel disposed to do so. In such cases we are enabled to give the name of any one who may be referred to, who is willing to testify to the benefit received from using Sanford's Radical Cure. And what better evidence can be adduced than the testimony of a responsible citizen in the case of a well known and respected citizen.

We would permit any one who may have no doubt it would be of service to them, to call at our office and see the testimony of many cured. Many are taken sick in the morning and go home at night with a cold in the head, and by neglect it develops into Catarrh. Others are taken sick every day. Hundreds are about getting up some cure which they hope will relieve them. Finally, I conclude to try Sanford's RADICAL CURE. Perhaps it is the best cure of any thing I have taken. Others who have used it every night and morning for years, and have had their health restored, are ready to testify that they have found a cure. Many who have suffered from Catarrh in its worst form, and who have spent hundreds of dollars in vain, are now cured by using Sanford's Radical

A SERMON TO FATHERS

The great secret of success in bringing up children is to establish and preserve confidence between parents and children. If the father is the boys best friend, as all wise mothers are the girls', there is no trouble about keeping them from bad associates whose vicious example and allurements have a lasting effort upon their characters. Fathers, in your efforts to secure fortunes for your families, remember that money will not save you from many a heartache if your boys go wrong, and that their only safety is in being kept close by your side helping you in your business, and you in turn sharing their fun and play. Nothing is so flattering to boys as the society of their fathers, and nothing makes a man so popular with them as his joining in their amusements. Try to do this, and you will find it easy to understand your cares and troubles. Take as much pains to preserve them from contamination in the shape of immoral companionship as mothers do their girls and you will find them growing up to be modest and virtuous young men, fit companions and husbands for girls who have been carefully guarded from all knowledge of evil. Devote your evenings to family amusements and pleasures. Invite young people to your house and pay them attention, instead of going off to bed or shutting yourself in no better room the moment they make their appearance.

Mr Clarence Cook in Scribner for January gives his reasons for not liking white china as

I don't know why we should insist on having all pieces of porcelain or earthenware on our table—at breakfast dinner or supper—alike. Why have everything in pairs? We already allow ourselves some freedom in china and tea why not in dishes? Make a Protestant strike for freedom in blue robin? There never were seasons when fine manufacturers began to take a more liberal view of life for all its phases. Of course there is no harmony but harmony does not mean uniformity. And if the general color of our service is blue or white yet a bit of other color in other colors is even better with the one and not far off. Now and then at sales on the Brittany of old household pieces of old Worcester or Wedgewood or Spode or Dresden shows may be met with and if they are in good condition—not chipped or cracked—they should be bought always provided they are pretty and will make a good foundation to work up from so to the however I claim any more than in pictures to go by in fact by what is pretty or rich or effective in a cup your tea cup or its saucer you hold it in a fine is pot or a china or written on it thank the gods that they made you poet enough to give you a pair of eyes if your own for what is pretty

WITH SOME PEOPLE ARE POOR—Silver spoons are used to rake the coffee ten pepper and spices are left to stand open and lose the strength

Potatoes in the fire grow and spread not nor covered till the potatoes become earthy

Brooms are never hung up and are soon spoiled

Nice tea knives are thrown into hot water

The flour is sifted in a careless manner and the bread is made with the dough sticking to it

Clothes are left on the line to whipping in the wind

Pickle barrels are left in the yard to dry and fall apart

Dried fruits are not taken care of in a clean and tidy manner and become wormy

Rags strings and paper are thrown into the fire

Bits of meat vegetables bread and coffee dregs are thrown away when they might be warmed into tempting and served in good shape

SINGING IN THE FAMILY—Children sing high in the family. Boys will sing if they are not yet three years old. In school and by mass your childhood songs—bring them back to your memory and teach them to your little ones. Sing them together. Let your music be as much a part of your life as your meals. Let your music be as much a part of your life as your meals. Let your music be as much a part of your life as your meals
